52 Tips to Improve Your Email Marketing

1. The voice you use in your content should reflect your unique business. Trying to sound like someone else means your subscribers never get to know the real you
2. If you're looking to maximize your open rates, an eye-catching subject line and preview text are the key to attracting clicks
3. You can never count on whether email images will display on your subscribers' browsers, which is why you should be sure to have good alt text
4. Keep your description of promotional offers brief, and save the details for later in the email so you don't overwhelm your subscribers with information upfront
