

15Five Continuous Performance Management

Develop your team in 15 minutes a week.

What do great managers do to engage employees? They check-in with their teams and provide frequent feedback. When done right, employees are three times more likely to be engaged at work.

But mere transactions between managers and employees are not enough. 15Five helps managers check-in with their teams and ask the right questions at the right cadence. It surfaces the most important topics every week, building trust between an employee and their manager, alignment across teams, and visibility in the organization.

Going Agile

Speed is the new business currency. More than 79% of global executives rate agile performance management as a high business priority.²

Annual reviews, slow feedback loops, and top-down management belong to bygone times. Businesses still using these practices risk losing innovation, productivity, and their top talent.

15Five allows the agile team to coach employees as fast as they need to sprint. Lightweight and rooted in positive psychology research, 15Five boosts employee performance by bringing together five key practices: objectives and key results, 1-on-1s, recognition, 360° reviews and weekly check-ins.

Our feedback system is used by thousands of leaders at top companies on lists like, Best Places to Work and Inc. 5000, and revolutionizing the way they scale their teams while bringing out the best in them.
